teen years have clapsed since the last cone was scored.

To this rare roll now must be added the name of T. J. Cusack, of New York University, who sent a drop kick spinning fifty yards against Rensselaer this fall, scoring a goal, and H. L. Cofall, of Notre Dame, who also sent the ball over this long distance by adrop kick, scoring a goal against Carlisle. But Cusack deserves some other attention. He is an Irishman and formerly played with the Blackwak College team in Dublin, where he was chosen as a forward three years in succession upon the All-Eastern team of Irisland to meet the All-Northern and All-Southern teams. But more For seven years in succession he was selected as an "International"—the highest football honor in Great Britain, and as such a member of the Irish team met the international teams of England, Scotland and Wales. He is now in his senior year in the medical department of his university.

Score Many Drop Kicks.

Many indeed were the drop kicks scored during the past fall. In several games the entire scoring was by this method. Apparently place kicks from scrimmage are on the wane. While there were many, it is true, the whole number indicates the return of the drop as the prevailing method of field goal scoring. One year ago only four goals from the field were scored from the forty-yard line and beyond, either by drop or place kicks. This year there were thirteen drop kicks and four place kicks sent from this line, or beyond, and eight of these were beyond the forty-five-yard line. Beware in 1915 of the field goal.

The second longest drop kick ap-Score Many Drop Kicks.

The second longest drop kick appropriately goes to the Far West, to L. Bingham, of Denver, who made the highly creditable record of kicking a goal from the forty-nine-yard mark against Wyoming. Two players share the honor of having made the longest place kick, forty-seven yards, M. Pierce of Miami sent such a kick across Mt. Union's crossbar, and J. J. Dowdle of Mt. St. Mary's duplicated the feat against Washington.

The foremost field goal man in the United.

The foremost field goal man in the United States in point of numbers of goals scored from the field is W. C. Cahall, of Lehtgh, who kicked ten goals from drop kicke Charles Barret, of Cornell, is second, with six, by drop kicks, and L. L. Lamb shares the honor with ham, hawing kicked six from placement.

To Halligan, of Nebraska goes the honor of having kicked the greatest number of goals in one game, three, which he accom-plished against lowa. Premier Punters of the Year.

Mayer Greatest Point Scorer.

The greatest point scorer and touchdown-maker in the East is E. N. Mayer, of Virginia. Who made nineteen touchdowns kicked seven goals from touchdowns, and contributed to the success of his team 121 points, his nearest competitor being Charles Barrett, of Cornell, with twelve touchdowns nineteen goals from touchdowns and four goals from the field, representing 105 points. The most notable performances, by reason of their magnitude or because of their effect, in the various departments of play were as follows:

Under a new governing board, there is a likelihood that the matter will re-ceive serious consideration. Those who have started the agitation to have de-cisions permitted claim that such a rule cisions permitted claim that such a rule would tend toward the betterment of the ring game in New York State. It is their contention that better bouts would result, as the principals would not dare "stall" through the ten rounds, as they too often do now.

These agitators also have an answer for those opposed to decisions on the ground that it breeds betting. The supporters of the decision movement point out that a State law provides that "it is a misdemeanor to place a wager on any form of competition"; they say that if this law were enforced the "sure thing" element would quickly be rounded up and eliminated.

The recent contest between Champion Freddle Welsh and Young Shugrue, the Jersey City boxer, revived the talk of allowing decisions to be rendered in local bouts. Shugrue's followers are bemoaning the fact that no official verdict was rendered, for then their idol would have been the lightweight champlon of the world, as Shugrue was the undisputed victor over the titleholder.

Tortorich, however, has one kick

plon of the world, as Shugrue was the undisputed victor over the titleholder.

Young Shugrue and Charley White have been treated unkindly by the fates as regards "decision" fights. Before Willie Ritchie left for England to hand over the lightweight crown to Freddie Welsh. White, mauled Ritchie all over a Milwaukee ring for ten rounds. The Chicagoan was unanimously proclaimed the winner, but the referee was not empowered by the State to give an official decision, and Charley will have to wait until he gets Freddie Welsh for twenty rounds, with a decision attached, before he can hope to win the championship.

Shugrue rather regrets that Referee Roche could not lift his hand that night and make him the happiest fighter Jersey ever produced. But it was not to be; so Joe finds solace in recalling his "moral" victory over a world's champion.

After five years of decisionless bouts. New Orleans has been rewarded with a law calling for official verdicts in twenty-round bouts. The first battle over the route under the new law did to the fall of the product of the
